NEW YORK MINUTES

The Big Apple's food scene is constantly evolving. Here are three of the hottest restaurants right now.

AI FIORI

A Michelin-starred restaurant and bar located on The Langham hotel's second floor, Sarah Jessica Parker and Richard Gere are frequent visitors.

DANTE

Caffe Dante, a registered New York City landmark, has served the Greenwich Village community since 1915. Its latest incarnation as Dante, re-imagined by a New York-based Australian family, puts a global twist on the institution's Italian heritage. Don't miss the Negroni Sessions, with more than 10 negronis to choose from, for $14 each, between 3-6pm daily.

BANTER

Answering the question of where to get breakfast in NYC, this cafe by Australian natives Nick Duckworth and Josh Evans brings Aussie cafe culture to the "centre of the universe". The health-conscious menu includes house-made granola, nourishing bowls and killer coffee.

STAY

The Langham, on iconic 5th Avenue, is the true New York experience. The 234 guest rooms (some of the largest in the city) scored the top spot for New York by Condé Nast readers in 2017. Visit langhamhotels.com
